

AIDS' BLUNDER LEAVES MRS. MILLS'S COFFIN ABOVE GROUND OVER NIGHT

Gravediggers Balk, Spectators Laugh And Woman Rants

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 28.—A ghastly "comedy of errors" marked the second exhumation of the body of Mrs. Eleanor Mills, slain choir singer sweetheart of the Rev. Edward W. Hall, in Van Lieu Cemetery here.

Because Senator Simpson's detectives and cemetery workers blundered and misunderstood each other, the body of Mrs. Mills, bared of its earthen blanket, remained exposed to the chill elements of an October night.

Sitting beside the open grave and clutching shotguns as they huddled about an oil stove in a hastily pitched pup tent, two North Brunswick policemen stood guard against ghouls until sunrise.

This morning Simpson has promised Mrs. Mills's body will be taken into the cemetery receiving vault, where an autopsy will be performed by Dr. Otto Schultze of the New York medical examiners staff. Simpson believes that Mrs. Mills's tongue was cut from her head by the cruel butchers who murdered her and Dr. Hall at their trysting place in DeRusseys Lane four years ago.

Says Tongue Was Cut Out

The Hudson county prosecutor told reporters in Jersey City last night when asked for the real reason for this second autopsy:—

"A Jersey City lawyer, who is friendly with a relative of Felix Di Martini, Mrs. Hall's private detective, has informed this office that Di Martini confided to his kinsman that Mrs. Mills' tongue had been cut out the night she was slain."

"I considered the source of my information authentic. We are holding this second autopsy for the sole purpose of learning whether this barbarous deed had actually been done."

Exhumation a Farce

Di Martini, a former member of the New York bomb squad, is the man who successfully defied Simpson in his effort to extradite him to Jersey after the special prosecutor had obtained an extradition writ from Gov. Smith.

The long promised exhumation yesterday was a fiasco, a farce. It was a severe reflection upon the efficiency of the prosecution.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon Detective Lieut. Walter Ciecuch, with Dr. Schultze, arrived at the cemetery. Only a few minutes before Albert Yorston, cemetery sexton, who had been told Ciecuch would arrive, left in his automobile.

Gravedigger Haggles

Ciecuch showed a Supreme Court order signed by Justice Parker to Charles, Denton, Sr., head gravedigger, and asked that Mrs. Mills's grave be opened.

Denton demurred, told Ciecuch that only Yorston could honor the writ, and explained that Yorston

Saw Murdered Sister's Grave Opened

While others laughed and joked, Mrs. Augustus Tenneson was a sorrowful spectator at the exhumation of the body of her sister, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, choir singer, who was murdered, together with her lover, the Rev. Dr. Edward W. Hall. What are Mrs. Tenneson's thoughts as she leans against a tombstone near the newly opened grave in Van Lieu Cemetery, in North Brunswick, N. J.?

Says Evangelist Can Find Ormiston Whenever Wanted

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28.—Proceedings in the preliminary hearing of Aimee Semple McPherson, Angelus Temple evangelist, on charges of conspiracy, were enlivened by counsel for one of the state's witnesses declaring that he had evidence to prove that Mrs. McPherson knows the whereabouts of Kenneth G. Ormiston, her former radio manager, a fugitive under similar charges as those of the evangelist.

It was alleged that while publicly appealing to Ormiston via radio and press to return and tell all he knows, Mrs. McPherson was in communication with him.

Several women testified to the grief shown by relatives when informed of the reported drowning of the evangelist.

King Calls Marie Home As His Illness Increases

BERLIN, Oct. 28 (By U. P.).—A dispatch to the Telegraphen Union from Bucharest today said that Queen Marie of Rumania had been requested to interrupt her tour of the United States to return to Rumania because of the condition of King Ferdinand's health. The king was reported to be in a serious condition.

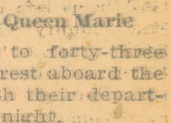

King Ferdinand is 61. For more than a month his majesty has been seriously ill, say reports, and he recently submitted to an operation. It was said soon after Queen Marie arrived in the United States that Ferdinand's physicians had told her the king probably would not live more than two years.

(A dispatch from Paris a week ago, announced that Rumanian diplomats were arranging the king's "illness" as a plausible excuse for the hasty recall of Queen Marie from America.)
